May was a busy month, full of travel for even more family activities and church visits.

The week of Mother's Day, we traveled to Pensacola to spend time with Hannah and her husband Matt to celebrate her graduation from Pensacola Christian College with her master's degree in history. It was neat to meet their new addition, a beagle mix named Winston. We took advantage of the time in Pensacola to meet with Dr. Bere, our college doctrines teacher and speaker at last year's conference in Peru, to confirm dates for this year's conference in September.

The following weekend, we traveled to Eastern Tennessee to be at one of our supporting churches. It was great catching up with them after nearly ten years. On the way up, we had lunch with some of our great friends and former ministry partners who now pastor in Athens. On the way back, we made a detour through North Carolina to handle some business for Jennifer.

We flew up to Maine for Memorial Day and spent time with Tim, Kathryn, and Evie. Although it was quite cold when we arrived, the weather improved so we could spend some time outdoors as well. Evie will be crawling soon. She already has several teeth and is quite mobile.

Stacy's first seminary class of the year finished mid-month, and the next one will start in the middle of June. He is still meeting virtually with Alex and recording the weekly radio broadcasts on missions and eschatology.

Another seminary has approached him about teaching next year.

We praise the Lord that Jennifer's health is stable. We noticed that she does not see the dramatic improvements that she once did when returning to the states, but at least she is not worse. Please continue to keep her in your prayers.

Matt and Naomi are eagerly awaiting Weston's arrival. Stacy helped paint the nursery, and Jennifer worked with Naomi to be sure she had enough to get started with. Now we just wait.

In Peru, the church celebrated Mother's Day with a special meal and activity on the Saturday before. Approximately twelve ladies were present.

After two months away, the leadership team and pastor Alex are still doing well and are making wise decisions as they encounter new situations. Continue to keep them in your prayers as they grow into their roles at the church.

We appreciate your faithful prayer support and financial investment in the ministries in Peru. We labor together for the glory of God.

Until the nets are full,
